

Many Thanks to Myron and Marc Nevins!

As Drs Myron Nevins and Marc L. Nevins say goodbye to The International Journal of Periodontics & Restorative Dentistry and embark on new career adventures, we are so very grateful for their many years of service. These outstanding Editors-in-Chief leave behind a legacy of clinical excellence for the journal.

Dr Myron Nevins began his role as PRD's Editor-in-Chief with its first publication in 1981. Over the next four decades, Dr Nevins helped establish the journal as a leading source of practical clinical research on implants, periodontal surgery, and prosthetic dentistry. In 2010, his son Marc joined him at the helm, and together they published nearly 80 issues. The father-son duo also acted as co-chairs of the International Symposium on Periodontics & Restorative Dentistry, which draws thousands of attendees to Boston every 3 years.

Assembling each issue was a personal endeavor for the Editors-in-Chief. With every submission, they guided the review process, curated a selection of articles that complimented one another, and hand-picked images that best represented each individual article as well as the journal as a whole.

As PRD grew to publish more articles, authors, and innovative studies, Dr Nevins spent more time with the people behind the articles. Authors would email Dr Nevins looking for advice, and he was always more than happy to discuss an article over the phone. "It would have been easy for Dr Nevins to take a hands-off approach to the authors given his busy schedule, but he always took the time to personally connect with them and help them whenever possible," says Kristen Henningson, who worked with Dr Nevins for 5 years as the Managing Editor of PRD. "That genuine connection helped make PRD the journal it is today."

Thank you to both Drs Nevins for the love and care you poured into this journal.

As we think about what comes next for the journal, we welcome our new Editors-in-Chief, Drs Avila-Ortiz and Gonzalez-Martin. We look forward to the future of the journal under their leadership, and we know they will take great care of it.
