Title: Totalprothesen nach dem All-Oral-Verfahren

Short text:

For edentulous patients with complex multiple disease and those for whom implant-based therapy concepts are not possible, a comparable quality of life can be achieved with optimally designed complete dentures. The aim of this book is to present a simple procedure for the safe and economical fabrication of complete dentures. It is based on the concept of the All-Oral procedure according to Professor Hofmann from Erlangen, which has proven itself over many years. Particular emphasis has been placed on practical relevance, so that the fabrication of prostheses does not require the costly acquisition of new equipment. With this intention, the book is aimed both at dental students and at colleagues actively practicing dentistry and dental technology.
